

LGBTQ Health Equity in Appalachia

An interdisciplinary symposium

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

This symposium will showcase the current state of LGBTQ health in Appalachia, including pressing issues facing our Southern LGBTQ community, as well as academic and community efforts to protect LGBTQ civil rights and promote health equity.

We invite attendees to imagine solutions that foster health and wellness for all LGBTQ Appalachians, while hearing from preeminent scholars and practitioners in public health, social sciences, political activism, and government.

We welcome applicants representing a diversity of substantive, disciplinary, methodological, and theoretical approaches. This symposium seeks to engage students, faculty, and community members throughout Tennessee and the Appalachian Southeast. Proposal topics may include, but are not limited to areas of research as they intersect with LGBTQ health and health equity:

- Public health, wellness, and healthcare
- Intersectionality theory, research, or practice
- Community organizing and activism
- History, art music, or literature
- Science and technology
- Performance, media, or popular culture

Questions? Contact LGBTQhealth@utk.edu

SUBMISSIONS

Submit abstracts of 500 words or less to

[https://tiny.utk.edu/
LGBTQHealthResearch](https://tiny.utk.edu/LGBTQHealthResearch)

by 02.28.18

SAVE the DATE

FRIDAY APRIL 6, 2018

8:30 a.m.—2:30 p.m.

RSVP

[https://tiny.utk.edu/
rsvpLGBTQHealth](https://tiny.utk.edu/rsvpLGBTQHealth)

Paid parking available with RSVP

This event is hosted by:

Dr. Jennifer Jabson, Department of Public Health

Co-sponsors:

UTK Commission for LGBT People, UTK Pride Center

THE UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE
KNOXVILLE
BIG ORANGE. BIG IDEAS.®