Several students in the Department of Public Health were able to attend this year’s annual Tennessee Public Health Association conference!

Here is what they have to say about the conference:

“The conference was such an incredible affirmation of my love for public health and that this is where I belong.”
- Jordan Shipley

“I had a great time at TPHA. It was very affirming that I am in the right field. It was a valuable experience to have as a student who is going to be entering the workforce this year because I was able to learn about current work, apply what I have learned throughout the program, and they even had a special networking mixer for students and TDH employees!”
- Anna Marie Cooksey
Faculty Spotlight!
Dr. Amy Wotring

Meet Dr. Wotring!

Dr. Amy Wotring was hired as an Assistant Professor of Practice in Public Health in Fall 2023. Currently, she is teaching exclusively in the Online MPH program. She received her Bachelor of Science Degree in Public Health from the University of Toledo; her Master of Public Health Degree from the Northwest Ohio Consortium of Public Health; her Graduate Certificate in Contemporary Gerontological Practice; and her Doctoral Degree in Health Education from the University of Toledo. Prior to joining the University of Tennessee, Dr. Wotring has taught 26 different courses over here career at Indiana State University and the University of Toledo and earned a Quality Matters online teaching certificate.

Her research interests are focused on health promotion in the community, especially in older adults.

Dr. Wotring currently lives in Peoria, Arizona, with her husband Spencer and son Miles (9 months old). For fun, she enjoys working out, traveling, hiking, playing games, and watching movies. She absolutely loves teaching and inspiring students to improve the health and wellness of our community!
